Two small border villages on either side of a rivulet retain close bonds in between. Practically all villagers know each other by name. Nilufar, a young village girl, is engaged to Aziz from the other village. But suddenly there comes a barbed wire border to separate the villages and things go awry. Nilufar's mother, on the last day of her pregnancy has to go to the hospital in the other village for sudden delivery and she will have to breach the new border to be with Aziz.
