Jose, Farouk and Reza are three young men from the underdeveloped outskirts of Paris with gloomy prospects. For them, life is hard and increasingly precarious as they are drawn further and further into crime just to survive. One day, they attack an armoured van and run off with a sack load of cash. The robbery hasn't gone quite as planned and the three friends end up taking refuge in a 13 square meter bunker, where they intend to stay until things have quietened down. There they will have to test their friendship and their motivations.
