In 1958, as Fidel Castro's revolution lurks on the horizon, recently divorced Alicia arrives in Havana and lands on the doorstep of her mother Violeta with her ten-year-old son Samuel in tow. Violeta soon develops a rapport with Samuel as he develops a keen interest in her work as a portrait photographer. As Violeta begins teaching her grandson the basics of photography, Samuel's skills soon rival her own, but the work teaches him a few things about the responsibilities and trials of the larger world.
