The film marks the return of Saeed Akhtar Mirza, one of the few Indian film-makers to have been officially invited to screen his film at The Directors' Fortnight, Cannes. The film tells the tale of Mumbai city and the millions who get off the train at VT station every second of the day hoping to latch on to the magic of Mumbai. Last Chance Mumbai traces the hopeful, the aspirational and sometimes desperate lives of people who inhabit the city. The film shows Mumbai as a glorious collage of naive dreams, young aspirations, determined grit, cynicism and optimism that is so much a character of this vast metropolis.
