Siddharthan, a writer and film director is found dead in the premises of 'Daffodils' his favourite hangout, where he had spend lazy evenings with his friends, with whom he discussed about everything under the sun and shared his innermost secrets. The police suspect he was murdered but failed to find any real clues as to who the culprit was. Ten years after Siddharthan's mysterious death, his friends once again plan a visit to 'Daffodils', for the last time, as the building is slated for demolition. But this time they witness something that they never expected.
